GRAMMAR. Uses of object pronouns

Look at these sentences with direct objects.

As direct objects

I want the sweatshirt. → I want it.

I love these jeans. → I love them.

1. What does the pronoun it replace in the first sentence? _____
2. What does the pronoun them replace in the second sentence? _____

Look at these sentences with objects of the preposition.

In prepositional phrases

Give this hat to Jane. → Give this hat to her.

He's buying a bag for his wife. → He's buying a bag for her.

Circle the prepositions in the sentences above. Underline the objects of the prepositions.

Look at these examples.

I want the sweatpants. Can you gift wrap them for me?

1. What are the two objects in the question "Can you gift wrap them for me?"

2. In sentences with two objects, which comes first: the direct object or the prepositional phrase (preposition + object)? _____
